

MEET THE PROVIDER

Timoya McKay-Wilkins, PA-C

Timoya McKay-Wilkins is a Georgia native who is proud to serve the community where she was raised. She attended high school locally in Powder Springs before continuing her studies at Spelman College, where she earned a Bachelor of Science in Biology. She later completed her Master of Science in Exercise Science at Liberty University, further strengthening her foundation in human movement, performance, and rehabilitation.

Timoya earned her Physician Assistant degree from Morehouse School of Medicine, where she developed a strong clinical foundation rooted in compassionate, patient-centered care.

With her background in biology and exercise science, Timoya brings a well-rounded and functional approach to musculoskeletal health. She is passionate about helping patients improve mobility, restore strength, and return to the activities they enjoy most. Her training enables her to view orthopedic and spine conditions not only from a diagnostic perspective but also through the lens of performance, recovery, and long-term wellness.

Outside of clinical practice, Timoya enjoys spending time with family, being in nature, mentoring young students, and volunteering within her community.
